Sydney Architects Allen Jack + Cottier delivered an inspired response to the NSW Department of Sport and Recreation's brief for a multipurpose recreation hall at Berry on the NSW south coast.

Project Architect John Wittingham said he chose to use Gerflor flooring for a range of performance, maintenance and environmental reasons.

"We chose to use Gerflor because we thought it provided excellent impact resistance and shock absorption appropriate for the wide range of activities likely to occur within the hall," John said.

"The sustainability credentials of the Gerflor surface also played a part considering the durability and longevity of the product as well as Gerflor's recycle policy."
