International standards were the benchmark for the new 4000 square metre multi-purpose sports facility at Mazenod College in Melbourne, featuring a world class volleyball court.

Director of Latitude Architects, Tony Cotter, stated "usually we would have installed the 9 mm Gerflor Taraflex surface over sprung timber flooring but we've done something a little different here using a system developed by Gerflor. This system achieves a similar outcome in terms of sport performance but delivers a superior outcome in terms of safety and comfort for those using the facility."

The installation is an Australian first that Tony now expects to see widely replicated in school and other sporting facilities. The facility also features Taraflex multi-purpose flooring in the table tennis centre that doubles as a twin classroom.

Taralay Premium and Tarasafe products feature throughout the remainder of the building, including the wall surfaces in the change rooms.
